The New York Times

The Gatsby sandwich at Kaia Wine Bar, inspired by South African street food, features French fries, chicken spiced with garam masala and pickles. Via Kaia Wine Bar

96th Street

Then there's Kaia Wine Bar. It's not new, it's not on or east of Second Avenue, and there are plenty of wine bars in this city. But I hadn't tried South African food until recently, and I'm betting I'm not alone. Last year, the New Yorker columnist David Kortava wrote that it was the only restaurant of its kind in the city, an incredibly rare distinction. Start with the viskoekie fish cake slider. Order the elk carpaccio, and get your dining companion to order the Gatsby sandwich stuffed with garam masala pulled chicken, pickles and French fries. If you feel overwhelmed by the extensive South African wine list, the servers will happily point you in the right direction.

The authentic Brazilian "Churrascaria"

Churrascaria Plataforma is a Rodízio style restaurant. Rodízio is a method of serving meat that originated in the south of Brazil in the early 1800's. Our menu showcases a delectable array of meats prepared with unparalleled culinary craftsmanship, promising an unforgettable dining experience. The concept is to serve a wide variety of different cuts of beef (top sirloin, baby beef, top round, prime beef hips, short ribs, rib eye, filet mignon), pork (pork ribs, sausage, pork loin), chicken (chicken legs, chicken hearts), lamb (lamb chops), seafood, etc., in succession, to each diner individually right at their table.

Guantanamera
939 8th Ave, New York, NY 10019

Guantanamera in NYC is a friendly, fun, vibrant Cuban restaurant featuring traditional Cuban fare, magnificent mojitos & live Cuban music. As indelibly Cuban as the classic love song that bestowed its name, Guantanamera, captures the essence of Old Havana with its exotic décor featuring exposed brick, candle-lit tables, rattan-covered ceiling fans, and hand-painted folkloric murals. Diners are invited to feast on homemade Cuban specialties using the freshest ingredients, complimented with superb service in a warm and inviting atmosphere. In addition to the unique dining experience, we offer an exquisite bar and lounge area with a distinctive assortment of fine wines, rums, liquors, specialty cocktails, and exceptional appetizers. So come and join us, and let the rhythm transport you to a place where rum libations flow, the music moves you, and the food feeds your soul.
